First Newsletter and First Sale of 2008

This is our first newsletter this year! This is our first Sale this year! Chip, friends, supporters, volunteers and customers continue on captives of the unique spirit of Schumacher's Hill Country Gardens. It is a symbiotic and sustainable way of life where people grow plants and plants grow people. As long as this living mutual dependence continues, The Nursery will continue on.

This Spring was different than in past years. New plant production was separated from the rest of nursery activities and completely dedicated to contract wholesale production of liners by the tens of thousands. We have yet to pot one gallon plants or grow anything new outside of the greenhouse. We, and to a larger extent our customers, have been picking through and finding plants grown in the past. This is a tradition here and a process best described as "What you see is what you get." In a sporadic fashion we have brought in new plant material to supplement our selection.

As times change, we now rarely offer new plants to the market place. However, fifteen years of searching for plants that perform in our difficult Texas Hill Country Gardens has left a list of over 4,000 plants that we have grown and offered for sale. Out of these 4,000 plants remain the ones that survived in spite of us. By means of a crude form of natural selection, what remains is a very respectable selection of both the best plants and the best clientele to be found anywhere in the Texas Hill Country.

We have found that our greatest liability is also our greatest asset. We are limited to a few able bodied people and a few people who must not let what they can't do stop them from doing what they can. We have been given the gift of another day and another year to do what we love most and do best.

We are bringing in new stock of what we consider the best plants for this area.

We are excited by the selection and quality of plants you will find at our sale. Now is the time to tell, bring, meet or make a friend at Schumacher's. Our website is the best place for reading past newsletters, getting directions to the nursery, subscribing or unsubscribing to this newsletter, seeing hours of operation, etc.
